

28 May 2008

MEDIA RELEASE

BOTANIC ARTISTS REVEAL THEIR TALENTS IN PAPER, PAINTING AND POTTERY

Three botanic artists will reveal their talents this winter at the Royal Botanic Gardens Cranbourne.

The three, Brad Trembath, Margaret Holloway and Ruth Petersen, offer a different perspective on nature through their work in paper, painting and pottery.

They will be working at The Gardens Shop at the Royal Botanic Gardens Cranbourne during July. The shop is offering a 5% discount on selected artworks during winter.

Brad is an Australian wildlife artist specialising in Kookaburras and Blue Wrens which are depicted in their natural and man made habitats. He will be on site on Sunday 6 July between 11am and 3pm.

Ruth Petersen creates highly collectable frog-themed pottery including frogs on mugs, plates, platters and clocks. She will lead a pottery demonstration on Sunday 13 July from midday to 3pm.

While Margaret Holloway designs mini-world greeting cards that are inspired by nature. Margaret received the Best Native Floral Award in 2000 from the Wildlife Artists' Society of Australasia. She will be in the Gardens Shop on Sunday 27 July between 12noon and 3pm.

Public inquiries: (03) 5990 2245

Media inquiries: John Myers on (03) 9818 6339.

Media enquiries: