Extension of car park at RBG Cranbourne

The Royal Botanic Gardens Cranbourne is extending the car park at the Australian Garden.

The extension is happening due to increasing visitor numbers and the extension of the Australian Garden, which will see the creation of a further ten hectares of garden displays and landscapes. The broader project also involves the creation of a woodland family recreation area, and an extension of the visitor centre.

Contractor, Cut & Fill, is beginning work on the car park extension shortly and expects to complete this element of the project by October 2008. The visitor centre extension will be complete by June 2009, with the Australian Garden landscape due to be completed in 2011.

The extension involves the removal of some trees and native vegetation.
